

CONCENTRATIONS AT EMMANUEL

Concentrations are bundles of four courses in a related subject or ministry area. Courses can be drawn from all areas of the curriculum, including Bible & Theology, General Studies, and Professional Studies. One course may be designated as an external practicum or internship. In most Emmanuel programs there is the capacity to include a concentration by using the four Free Elective slots or by combining electives in Professional Studies and Free Electives. Concentrations currently offered are shown below.

Develop Your Own Concentration

Students may also build their own concentrations by choosing related courses that provide for a focused exploration of a specific subject or area of ministry practice. Students may combine in-class courses, Distance Education courses, online courses, and professor-assisted or reading courses to make up a concentration.

Here are a few things to keep in mind if you are considering this option:

- The concentration must have a clear focus and rationale. Choosing four unrelated courses does not make a concentration.
- Courses can be drawn from all areas of the curriculum, but normally courses are selected from General Studies and Professional Studies.
- Only one course may be used to meet the requirements of both concentrations.
- Courses included in concentrations may be used to meet other program requirements such as credit-hour requirements in a course division.

New concentrations should be developed in conjunction with your faculty advisor or program manager/director. The faculty member brings the completed Concentration Approval Form to the Academic Council for approval. The Registrar's Office or faculty advisor can provide further details.
